Mutual respect is the foundation of a free society.

Dear colleagues,

As a family-managed company, visions and values are extremely important to us. For generations, the existing collective values have laid the foundation for trustful cooperation, and business success. First and foremost we have a responsibility to our employees but also to the society in which we engage in as entrepreneurs. As an example, our staff had been receiving social benefits long before it was regulated legally in the 19th century. And also today as a global player with over 30 locations on three continents, we stand firm knowing that our competitive advantage is dependent mostly on our committed and well-trained employees; whereas technology can be readily accessible.

But our values go further, they provide guidance and support for all of us. They describe how we want to live and work with each other. Our jointly developed Vision & Values Book, now released, gives us guidelines for respectful interactions.

As a priority we are committed to human rights, freedom of opinion, and tolerance. Every person is unique. Praise and appreciation for our employees give them a sense of strength, achievement and self-confidence. Let us approach together every kind of discrimination, racism, and prejudice within our company as well as within the society we live in. In interactions with others let us always remain confidant in who we are so that we can remain credible, approachable and reliable. Let us never forget to remain accountable to ourselves by recognizing our own faults before indicating faults of others. Let us learn to better understand the reactions of others towards our conduct – it is always helpful to view things from a different perspective.

Mutual respect is the foundation of a free society.

Our Values

Our Values

— Honesty and reliability, trust and respect, social, environmental and cultural responsibility. These are the KIRCHHOFF Automotive values.

12 Regardless of who we are or what our role in the KIRCHHOFF Automotive team is, this small "Vision & Values book" is the binding foundation for our day-to-day business.

What do values mean to our society?

Values are what hold our society together. They have a direct impact on our daily interactions and create a framework that provides a sense of direction and certainty in an increasingly complex global environment.

Why do we as a company place values at the heart of our day-to-day business?

The KIRCHHOFF Automotive values are deeply rooted in our company culture. They define what is important in terms of our daily interactions and what sets us apart from others. We consider them as the basis for our business success.

The KIRCHHOFF Automotive values provide clarity and create a sense of commitment towards our colleagues, employees and supervisors, as well as with our customers, suppliers and partners.

Our values set a foundation for employee appreciation. Not only is it important to respect individual uniqueness but also to respect and understand cultural differences. These cultural differences add value to the company and serve as a source of innovation and continuous improvement.

Our values reaffirm our responsibility towards the sustainable development of our society, the preservation of the environment and biodiversity for future generations. They are the bonds that unite all KIRCHHOFF Automotive employees as a strong team.
